About this moving in checklist

Moving to a new house is an exciting time, but it can also be busy and stressful. There are a lot of things you need to think about.

This checklist will guide you through the different things you need to do as you move in. It explains difficult words and asks you questions about your home and staying safe. You can tick the answers off and write your answers as you go.

It is for you to use as you wish. We suggest you share the information with your family and housemates. Keep the checklist in a safe place.

Remember: As well as reading this checklist, make sure to read and understand your tenancy agreement and tenant handbook. The agreement is a legal document that you sign with your landlord. It lets you live in your home and outlines the rules to follow.

If you are unsure about anything about moving into your new home please speak to your landlord who may be a private landlord, your local authority or an approved housing body.

Important words explained

There are some words in this checklist which may be new to you. We explain these words below.

Rent is a regular payment to a landlord which will allow you to live in your home.

People or organisations who you may rent from

Landlord: The organisation or person who rents you your home. This can include the local authority, approved housing body or private landlord.

Local authority: Local authorities are responsible for providing many public services in your area such as water and road maintenance .

Approved housing body: Approved housing bodies are independent, not-for-profit charities. They provide and manage social rented housing.

Private landlord: A private landlord is a property owner who chooses to rent out their property.

Paying the bills

Utilities: Utilities are services provided to your home. These services can include electricity, heating, bin collection, TV, phone and internet.

Utility companies: Utility companies are those businesses that provide services to your home. These services can include electricity, heating, bin collection, TV, phone and internet.

Items and safety devices

Fob: A fob is an electronic key that allows you access to your home and other areas.

Water stopcock: A water stopcock is a valve used to control the flow of water into your home.

Fuse box: The fuse box contains the fuses for all the electric circuits in a home or building. It is usually attached to a wall. You may also use it to top-up electricity or check how much electricity you have used by taking a meter reading.

Carbon monoxide alarm: A carbon monoxide alarm is a device that detects the presence of carbon monoxide gas to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning. Every home should have one.

Changing or setting up bills and utilities

When moving into your new home, you need to set up the utilities like gas and electricity for your home.

There are two ways to do this. You can:

- set up a new account with a utility supplier, or
- transfer your current account to the address of your new home.

If you pay for your electricity and /or gas using a prepay meter, please ensure you know how to top up your prepay meter.

Put the information in the table to help you track what bills or utilities you need to set up a new account for or transfer old account's to new address.
