This document provides guidance for applicants wishing to submit a proposal to The Housing Agency Research Support Programme:

1. What is expected of successful applicants
2. Details on the assessment process
3. Details of payment of grant funding

1. The Housing Agency expectations of successful applicants

When applying for funding from The Housing Agency, applicants are expected to comply with our policies and, in particular, those outlined below:

1.1 Knowledge exchange and impact

The Housing Agency is committed to knowledge exchange and encouraging collaboration between those conducting research projects and the private, public and civil society sectors. Collaborative working benefits all parties and The Housing Agency. Through collaboration, partners learn about each other's expertise, share knowledge and gain an appreciation of different professional cultures. Collaborative activity can therefore lead to a better understanding of the ways in which research projects of all types can add value and offer insights to key issues of concern for policy and practice. To be most effective, knowledge exchange should not be treated as an 'add-on' at the end of a research project but considered before the start and built into a project. With this in mind, applicants must provide an Impact Statement and Dissemination Plan as part of the application form which shows how the research project will be effectively disseminated and potentially impact housing policy and practice. Innovative approaches to dissemination via various online platforms are welcome. It is expected that The Housing Agency can practically assist successful applicants with networking and some publishing and dissemination activities. The Housing Agency also has an online presence to publicise work undertaken with the support of the Research Support Programme, this online platform can host any outputs such as blog posts, working papers, etc, with the agreement of the researchers involved. The Research Support Programme website can be found here.

1.2 Research Ethics

The Housing Agency requires that the projects we support are designed and conducted in such a way that it meets certain ethical principles.

As a source of public funds for research projects and as a body which encourages, supports, and advises on such research projects, The Housing Agency recognises that it has a special obligation towards the general public and the research and academic communities to ensure that the projects which it funds are carried out to a high ethical standard. We recognise the importance of high ethical standards within research projects and have an Ethical Framework which all Housing Agency supported projects are expected to observe. Researchers are asked on the application form to state if their project needs ethical consideration and to outline the steps taken to ensure the project is aligned with the Ethical Framework.
